Health Advocate offers real support

Your Personal Health Advocate can help you locate the resources you need. Here are a few ways we can assist you:

• Locate and directly communicate with qualified doctors for second opinions
• Research in-home care and school- and community-based services
• Identify leading treatment centers
• Research conditions, latest treatment options, medication side effects and generic equivalents
• Explain Medicaid and other benefits issues
• Untangle medical bills; uncover errors

Real people… real results

“They found the right services when my son was diagnosed with Autism.”

Kathy called her Personal Health Advocate, Mary, about special education services for her son. Mary located support groups, an art therapist and a summer program. She also helped Kathy apply to Medicaid to cover medical, educational and community resources.

Remember… Your Personal Health Advocate can help answer your questions and assist with a full range of healthcare and insurance-related issues. Eligible employees, their spouses, dependent children, parents and parents-in-law can all use the Health Advocate benefit.

Special Needs Children

Nine million U.S. children under the age of 18 have special needs that include chronic physical, developmental, behavioral or emotional conditions, according to U.S. Census data. It can be overwhelming to find the right providers and services, and to handle insurance issues.
