Is your beneficiary up to date?

Naming your beneficiary—and keeping the information current—is an important aspect of managing your retirement account.

For instance, has there been a marriage or birth? Perhaps you never made a designation in the first place? Outdated or missing beneficiary information can create significant costs and delays for those you leave behind.

Take a moment: double-check your beneficiaries

- Go to TIAA.org to log in to your account (or to register).
- Enter your TIAA user ID and password.
- Select Actions, then choose Beneficiaries. From there, you can add/edit/remove.

⚠️ Be aware

Your retirement account requires its own beneficiary information. The beneficiary you may have designated for other Princeton University benefits or in your will do not apply.

Need help?

When you log in to your account on TIAA.org, you’ll find helpful information about beneficiaries and more. For questions, assistance or to request a paper beneficiary form, you can also call us at 800-842-2252.

Please note: For your protection, we cannot change your beneficiary over the phone.

Remember, you can change your beneficiary information again at any time.
